

Federal Troops and State Guards Cover Important Mining Districts

VERY FEW DISTRICTS WORKING AT NORMAL CAPACITY; UNION LEADERS OF MINERS PLAYING SHUT MOUTH.

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 3. — Developments today in the strike of more than 425,000 soft coal miners throughout the country were expected to clarify the situation to the extent of determining whether productions were to be stopped indefinitely or whether any considerable number of workers were willing to return to work. No plans have been made for opening any of the mines with imported labor, and no miner who returns will be discriminated against.

Reports from most of the large mining districts indicated that while a large number of mines would be in shape for miners to resume work, the operators did not expect many union men to re-enter the mines today.

John L. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers of America, who spent Sunday at his home in Springfield, Ill., was today on his way back to Indianapolis, headquarters of the organization.

Federal troops were today in the mining regions of West Virginia, Tennessee, Wyoming and New Mexico under orders to preserve peace. A company of the Thirty-second Infantry was also on its way from San Diego to do duty in coal fields in the state. The National Guards of Colorado and Oklahoma have already been mobilized at Birmingham, Alabama.

Union Leaders Silent

By the Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 3. — Officials of the United Mine Workers of America at the International headquarters here today continued their attitude of silence on the coal strike which was forced on them last Friday by the restraining order issued by U. S. District Judge Anderson. Not a word regarding the strike could be obtained there.

The government's program for enforcing the restraining order against the miner's officials was expected to take definite shape with the arrival here today of Special Assistant District Attorney General D. W. Simmons of Lafayette, Ind., who will have direct charge of the government's case. It was reported today that William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury might be retained by the miners during the hearing on the government's petition for a temporary injunction which was set by Judge Anderson for next Saturday.

While practically all Indiana mines were open and miners trains were run on schedule, only the engineers and pumpers went to work.

Government Ready to Act.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. — Attorney General Palmer today informed coal miners who protested against the strike injunction that the government stands ready to "do anything in its power to facilitate an inquiry into the merits of the controversy, but in the meantime the law must be enforced and any combination to stop production cannot be tolerated."

Mr. Palmer's statement made in a reply to a telegram from the local miners union at Glencoe, Ohio, to President Wilson was taken to indicate that no attempt would be made by the government to settle the wage controversy until the strike was called off.

Operators Without Plans.

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 3. — No plans other than those the miners refuse to consider have been formulated by the operators to end the bituminous coal miners strike, Thomas F. Brewster, Chairman of the operators' appeal committee announced today. Mr. Brewster added that so far no further plans have been contemplated. He admitted that negotiations between miners and operators appeared to be dead for the present.

Kansas Fields Quiet

By the Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Kans., Nov. 3. — The Kansas coal mining field is quiet today, the shut down being complete. No disorder of any kind has been reported.

Non-union Men Unaffected.

By the Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 3. — No effort will be made by the United Mine Workers to have non-union miners in the Pittsburgh field join in the strike, until after the injunction proceedings in Indianapolis have been disposed of, according to union officials here today.

Reports from the district as well as from other parts of western and central Pennsylvania showed no change in the situation.

Denver Field Operating

By the Associated Press

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 3. — Early reports at the offices of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company indicated that the company properties in the southern Colorado coal fields were operating today with reduced forces. These properties were kept closed on Saturday until the arrival of troops.

Ohio Mines All Closed

By the Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 3. — Coal mines of Ohio employing 40,000 union miners are closed and no attempt will be made to operate them until agreement is reached and strikers return to work, according to W. D. McKinney, secretary of the Southern Ohio Coal Exchange.

HAPSBURG CROWN JEWELS FOR SALE BEFORE THE WAR

Superb Diamond Necklace, Gift of Napoleon, Was Up for Sale.

By the Associated Press

PARIS, Nov. 2. — That crown jewels the property of the House of Hapsburg were offered for sale before the war was revealed today by the appearance of a diamond broker before Judge Cluzel. It appears that the then reigning house of Austria had decided to part with a superb diamond necklace the gift of Napoleon to Marie Louise at the birth of the King of Rome.

A French society woman was asked to negotiate the sale. She had instructions to operate with extreme caution, signing no bill of sale, giving no receipts. She appealed to a well known diamond firm of Southern France, depositing the jewels with them for safe keeping. The broker served in the war and has now returned. The society woman, however, claims that she received no accounting of the transaction. Since the armistice she says she has repeatedly called upon the broker to produce the necklace or the proceeds of the sale. This, she told Judge Cluzel today, he has failed to do.

The broker says he is holding the necklace as security for expenses amounting to 30,000 francs which he has incurred in his attempts to negotiate the sale.

Conflicting Thoughts

STORE BURGLARIZED; FOUR ARE ARRESTED

Since yesterday afternoon four parties have been arrested by local officers on charges growing out of the burglary of the Haynes Hardware store some time yesterday. Those arrested are Ivey Wright, Barton Wright and Nick Campbell on charges of grand larceny, and a lad named Roquemore, who was arraigned in the juvenile court.

About sixty dollars' worth of hardware was missing from the store, consisting of about sixteen pocket knives, two watches a pistol etc. It was thought that the parties effected an entrance thru an upper window, as there were muddy tracks on the window sills. A back door was left open, which attracted the attention of the officers and led to an investigation.

A part of the stolen property has been recovered. A pocket knife identified as belonging to the store was purchased by Ben Murphy, who turned the knife over to the sheriff, which led to the boy's arrest. The pistol was sold to a party in town by one of the suspected boys and was recovered by the officers. It is probable that a charge of burglary will also be filed against some of those under suspicion. Less than a week ago the store of the Coffman, Bobbitt & Sparks Hardware Company was burglarized and a quantity of goods stolen.

DALLAS ABOLISHES SUNDAY FUNERAL

By the Associated Press

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 3. — Sunday funerals are being discouraged in several Texas cities. The Dallas Pastors' Association recently adopted resolutions against Sunday funerals, except where health rules necessitate burials on that day, and now the ministers' organization in Cleburne has adopted similar resolutions. Action in both cases was taken to avoid possible strife of grave diggers and others associated with funerals. The clergymen pointed out it was desirable to permit undertakers, grave diggers and others in this class to observe the Sabbath as a day of rest.

Dr. M. L. Lewis will leave tomorrow for Dallas, Texas, where he will undergo an operation by specialists for ulceration of the stomach.

BUSINESS MEN OF LONDON LEARNING COURTESY AGAIN

"We Say 'Thank You,' Now," Says a Sign in a Cigar Store.

By the Associated Press

LONDON, (By Mail). — Politeness is returning to London. Shopkeepers are learning again to be civil. This applies even to grocers, who, since the introduction of rationing, have been the greatest tyrants, barring taxicab drivers, that the war has produced.

The cynical-minded account for the grocer's unaccustomed civility on the ground that his customers will be given the privilege of taking their ration books to some other store, but there can be no doubt of the new spirit in the air.

"We say 'Thank you' now," announces a sign in a cigar store which was recently taken over by demobilized soldiers. These soldiers have brought good manners back from the front.

No reports have been received of any "thank-yous" from taxicab drivers, for the cabs are still scarce, but it's not uncommon nowadays to hear a "bus conductor" express thanks for the penny when he punches the ticket.

The butcher is also falling into line. He no longer expects to be bribed for attentiveness and he has abandoned the war-time practice of throwing a chop at a customer and expecting him to find the paper in which to wrap it up.

Americans who came over for the first time during the war are at last beginning to understand why pre-war tourists praised life in England.

HUN MINERS WILL WORK OVER TIME TO SUPPLY COAL

GENEVA, Oct. 31. — A general meeting at Mannheim, Baden, of associations of miners and transport workers in the Rhine region has decided, owing to the lack of coal in southern Germany, to re-establish the 12-hour day with voluntary work Sundays until the crisis is passed, according to a Basle dispatch. The rate of wages have not been announced.

RED CROSS CAMPAIGN IS NOW UNDER WAY

The Red Cross membership drive is now well under way and soliciting committees are working overtime seeing the thousands of Pontotoc county citizens. The campaign seems to be well organized, and the interest being manifested by the public justifies the opinion that the county will have raised its quota long before the expiration of the limit of time set for the drive.

The first communities of the county to go over the top according to J. T. Crawford, the manager of the drive, were Center and Jones Chapel, which reported their quotas of $100.00 and $50.00 respectively as being raised the first day. These are two of the communities of the county that can always be depended on to be among the leaders.

Probably the first business institution in Ada which reached the 100 per cent membership mark was the Evening News, which enlisted as volunteers, everybody from the boss to the devil, as soon as the shop opened for business this morning.

The campaign thrust has been one of organization only, no speeches having been made or called for at any time or place. Luther Harrison, who has charge of the speakers bureau, reports that he has not received a single request for a speaker. This is no doubt due to the fact that everyone is acquainted with the splendid work of the Red Cross and the general willingness of the public to carry on the work the organization did during the war.

LEADERS AGREE ON TREATY VOTE SOON

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. — A final vote this week on ratification of the peace treaty is proposed in a unanimous consent agreement drawn up for presentation to the senate today by the administration leaders.

Apparently contemplating the possibility of a deadlock over reservations, the agreement provides that after this week the treaty if not ratified can be laid aside.

SUGAR BILL IS REPORTED TO SENATE

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. — The bill proposing continuation of the federal control over sugar during 1920 was reported today to the senate and placed on the calendar with a view to early action.

WAR RISK BUREAU ONE OF TRAGEDY

LETTERS POURED INTO THIS DEPARTMENT TELL MANY DIRE TALES OF THE GREAT WAR.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. — Much of the humor and some of the tragedy of the war are poured daily into the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, which has the enormous task of administering the insurance and allotment accounts of all men in the military service.

At the first of the month the letters arrive at the rate of 140,000 a day, later falling to 40,000 or 50,000. Between 75,000 and 100,000 pieces of mail are sent out daily. Remittances for insurance premiums numbered 1,203,792 between July 14 and October 7, having a value of $9,784,186.

Handling such a tremendous quantity of mail, dealing with men whose names in scores of instances are identical, necessitates the most punctilious accuracy, to assure that the proper account is credited. One mother who wrote to ask about an allotment made by her son Jim was asked to be more specific in identifying the soldier. She wrote back, somewhat indignant in her motherly pride:

"You must have noticed Jim, because he's six feet tall."

The Bureau is constantly reminding persons with whom it has dealings to send notification of any change in address. One person took this injunction very literally.

"Dear Government," she wrote. "This is to let you know I am staying a while with my folks at Simpkins Falls."

Manifest willingness to obey the law and the honesty of the average American are portrayed in most of the letters, but in none better than the one replying to a formula inquiry whether the mother of a certain soldier who asked a government allowance for her, had any support. She conscientiously replied:

"Only Fred's hens."

The mail section of the Bureau has been put on a 16-hour basis to keep the handling of mail strictly current. One shift works from nine to five each day, another coming on at one o'clock in the morning to work until nine. Great mail trucks make hourly trips to the postoffice, day and night.

Letters containing insufficient information—and there are many of them—entail great trouble. They are turned over to index searchers who comb the files for other papers until the case in question is beyond doubt. This group of employees works from five until midnight.

GOVERNOR TELLS PEOPLE TO BACK NATIONAL GUARD

Says Guard Has Explicit Orders That Will Surely Be Obeyed.

"I have called out the national guard for the purpose of giving every man in the state who wants to work in the mines the opportunity of doing so without being interfered with by the strikers."

"I expect the people of the coal mining districts to give the national guard their support. The troops must be treated with respect. No insult or indignity of any nature, suffered by a national guardsman, will be tolerated."

"The guard has explicit orders that will be obeyed to the letter. They should not be interfered with in any way."

"I am going to operate every mine in the state where we can get sufficient help."

"In the mines within the prison farm at McAlester we will use convict labor."

"All coal will be distributed through the state fuel administrator and every person will be dealt with fairly. Each will get his fair share of the coal available and the coal produced during the crisis."

J. B. A. ROBERTSON, Governor.

OIL FOR FUEL CUTS GASOLINE SUPPLY

EXPERT DEPLORES USE OF OIL FOR FUEL, SINCE IT CUTS THE AVAILABLE GASOLINE SUPPLY.

By News' Special Service

"Every barrel of fuel oil used for steam generation is a potential barrel of gasoline," says W. G. Williams, petroleum engineer of Oklahoma City, in a letter addressed to the International Power Economy conference which held a session in Chicago Thursday and Friday. Williams deplores the continued increase of the use of fuel oil in view of the increasing demand for gasoline and the probability of the world's supply of crude becoming within a few years inferior to the demand.

Williams was formerly head of the oil and gas conservation organization of the federal fuel administration for the Mid-Continent district, and was on the program for an address before the Chicago conference. Being unable to attend he sent a letter that expressed briefly his views on the subject of fuel oil waste.

"The capital invested in the internal combustion engine industry is so vast that it is somewhat disquieting to note that greater attention has not been drawn to our government's oft repeated warnings regarding the condition of this resource," he says. "The automobile industry concerns itself more with attempts to devise ways and means of utilizing the lower hydrocarbons as motor oil than to assist the petroleum industry in conserving the resource."

"Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana are covered with refineries which are incapable of producing from crude oils other products than gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil. At a guess I should say that over 60 percent of the total crude oil produced in the United States is used for fuel. Were our refineries equipped to convert this oil into gasoline, as is the Standard's plant at Louisville, our drafts on the unlimited supply of crude would greatly diminish and the life of the resource be immensely increased."

"As long as fuel oil is permitted to be sold in competition with other fuels, just so long will the devastation of the petroleum resource continue."

"America Reckless."

Mr. Williams quotes from a recent article in Spelling's Journal, London, in which the writer asserted that "the great oil fields of the United States are nearing exhaustion and it is not believed that the new ones proved will yield anything like the old production. America has recklessly, and in sixty years, run through a legacy that, properly conserved, should last for at least a century and a half. Already, though few people realize it, America is an importer of oil. Last year she imported from Mexico 38,000,000 barrels of oil of 42 gallons each. They are now, however, diligently scouring the world for new oil fields, only to find wherever they turn, that British enterprise has been there before them."

Crack distillation is mentioned as the remedy for the situation and reference is made in the letter to a report from the Smithsonian institution which says that "cracking may be expected to come into practice as needed, but its progress would be facilitated by extended research on a commercial scale in keeping with the true importance of the matter."

Survey Aids Conservation. Williams suggests as a solution "giving every possible assistance towards the development of the art of cracking distribution, which is particularly the business of the internal combustion engine industry, and the development of the central station."

"No better work of an economic nature could have been undertaken than the contemplated survey, by the fuel administration, of the industrial fuel and power situation," he says. "Carried to a logical conclusion this survey would have led to the elimination of all wasteful fuel uses, concentrated the development of energy-using industries in communities contiguous to source of energy, and made impossible the profligate use of either coal or petroleum."

ATTACKING THE LAND BANKS

Ever since the Federal Farm Loan system was established it has been under the fire of the American Farm Mortgage Bankers' Association. This may be a natural thing; and yet it was not the intention of Congress in enacting the Federal Farm Loan act to put the old mortgage companies out of business. The act provided for a system of joint-stock land banks into which the old mortgage companies might be converted, to provide a means by which private investors might be enabled to meet the competition of the Federal land banks within the system if they found that operating the bank outside of the system became unprofitable. This looked to congress like a fair deal to the mortgage companies. They might stay outside of the system if they pleased, or they might come in and be of the system. If they came in they were forced to give up their bonuses and commissions, they were obliged to make long-time and amortized loans, and they were confined to a maximum rate of six per cent. They were also obliged to submit to the regulation of the Federal Farm Loan Board instead of going on unregulated as in the past. The Federal Farm Loan Board adopted what is regarded as a liberal code of regulations for the joint-stock land banks, and the system has been thought favorable enough for investors so that about twenty-five such banks have been organized; but not many of them are offered or owned by the old farm-mortgage bankers. As a class they have preferred to stay out and try to ruin the Federal Farm Loan system by agitation and propaganda.

In this agitation and propaganda they are not entitled to the sympathy of anyone. The farmers of the country are on the other hand entitled to every amelioration possible of the evils of high interest rates, frequent renewals and burdensome bonuses and commissions, from one or all of which evils they have suffered from time immemorial. Not only are the farmers entitled to such relief, but the general welfare of the country, the production of food and the building up of a better rural life make such a system a thing to be supported by every citizen, whether he lives in city or in country. Congress had the welfare of the country in mind when passing the act, and it has worked exactly as congress meant it to work. The money which the land banks lend to the farmers is raised by the sale of Federal Farm Loan bonds which are exempt from taxation of all kinds.

Mortgages Which Fade Away
This plan was devised so that the bonds would sell at a low interest rate, to give the farmers a low interest rate. This it does, exactly as congress meant it should. The farmers borrowing through the Federal land banks get their money at five and a half per cent, with a one per cent amortization charge so that by paying six and a half per cent annually their mortgages are gradually paid off in about thirty-five years, and if the six and a half per cent is paid promptly there is never a renewal or possibility of foreclosure. As one advocate has said, they are mortgages "which fade away." The farmers like them; otherwise the state of Iowa, which has for a long time enjoyed the favor of private lenders, would not have borrowed nearly or quite $5,000,000 on this plan within the past two years. The rate is no lower than the Iowa farmers formerly enjoyed; but the terms are more attractive.

The Federal Farm Loan Board and the twelve Federal land banks have gone on quietly, and on the whole, very conservatively, and without much beating of drums or blowing of trumpets have built up in about two and one half years a financial system of the scope of which few people have any idea. The National Farm Loan associations now number nearly 4000, and the loans of the Federal Land banks alone, not counting those of the joint-stock land banks, amount to something like $300,000,000. They work in every state, so that the competition of the system is felt wherever farm loans are made, and farmers who borrow through other agencies feel the benefits of it whether they know it or not, in easier conditions generally. This has been a thing of great importance during the war, when for a time interest rates for general business were stiff and high. No one knows what the farmers would have had to pay had it not been for the Federal Farm Loan system.

Insidious Propaganda.

The attacks on the system have culminated in a suit to test the constitutionality of the provision which exempts the Federal Farm Loan and the joint-stock land-bank bonds from taxation. This suit has been brought through the activities of the Farm Mortgage Bankers' Association. It is just as well that the law be tested. Before the act was passed its constitutionality was very thoroughly looked into; and the question was subsequently reported on in an elaborate opinion by Hon. Charles E. Hughes, and by other counsel for the great financial houses which have been selling the bonds. All these opinions have supported the constitutionality of the tax exemptions. Although a few bondholders express alarm, the suit is not giving the land banks and the members of the Federal Farm Loan Board any great anxiety.

Not all the attacks on the system, however, have been open and above-board as is this suit. Farmers have been told that if they borrowed through the National Farm Loan associations they would be liable for each other's mortgages. This, of course, was an attempt to mislead. Statements have been made tending to show that Federal farm loans have been made on bad security; yet the records of delinquencies show a most prosperous condition in the land banks; and the fact seems to be that there are many complaints among farmers of overconservatism in appraisements. In some regions where drouths have scourged the country for two or three years one or two of the banks will no doubt have some losses, but owing to the fact that all the Federal land banks are not the joint-stock banks, a glance at these twelve great institutions will show that they could easily wipe the slate of all bad loans without being crippled in the least. All the Federal land banks, except those of the east, either have paid or are in position to pay dividends on the borrowers' stock; and even the slower east is coming in with a mass of business which will soon put them all on a dividend-paying basis. And yet the enemies of the system have tried to scare the borrowers by saying that the money invested by borrowers in the stock of their association would be lost.

The last argument and the most important made by the American Farm Mortgage Bankers' Association is the argument of patriotism. It is that the holders of Federal Farm Loan bonds ought to pay taxes on them. The exemption from taxation, however, is a benefit which goes to the farmers. Tax the bonds and the farmers would have to pay a higher interest rate. The argument that the tax-exempt Federal Farm Loan bonds injure the market for Liberty Bonds may be dismissed as without weight. There are only about $300,000,000 in the farmers' bonds, while the plutocrats who want to escape taxation have billions of other tax-exempt bonds and stocks which they may buy if they desire. There are municipal bonds, mutual savings bank securities, and other investments which are tax-exempt to the amount in the aggregate of over three and three-quarter billions of dollars which the rich tax dodger may buy, and they are coming out at the rate of ten bonds to every one of the Federal Farm Loan system. This is twenty chances to buy other tax-exempt securities, not to mention the several billions of tax-exempt Government bonds, to the one chance to get a bond issued for the benefit of the farmers. The whole system of the development of the cities, towns and villages rests on the power to issue tax-exempt bonds.

The American Farm Mortgage Bankers' Association seems exercised in its mind about none of these. It is only desirous of cutting off the farmers' right to a portion of this benefit. Tax Federal Farm Loan bonds and the great advantage which the system offers to the farm borrowers would be wiped out. This would be a fine thing for the old lending agencies, but it would not be good for the farmers; and we do not think it would be good for the country. We believe that Congress will have the good sense and good judgment to stand with the 4000 National Farm Loan associations rather than with the American Farm Mortgage Bankers' Association.—The Country Gentleman.

RAT WAR RENEWED BY ENGLISH PEOPLE

By the Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 20.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—The war on rats, which was suspended while the other war was in progress, is being renewed by the Ministry of Agriculture which estimates that property to the value of $250,000,000 is destroyed in the United Kingdom every year by rats.

The chief rat inspector of the Board of Agriculture estimates that each rat destroys property to the value of about $5 every year, while an official of the British Medical Association lays the spread of many deadly diseases, including trench fever, to rats.

Already precautions have been taken at the London docks which will prevent rats from landing from ships and which, if they do land, speedily ends in their death.

COMISKEY HAS HAD 40 YEARS OF BALL

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Charles Albert Comiskey, known as the "Old Roman," president of the pennant winning White Sox is indeed the "grand old man of baseball." Ever since he upset his father's hope some forty years ago by taking up baseball instead of becoming a plumber he has been connected with baseball in various capacities, having traveled around the world with the Chicago and New York teams in 1913-14 and being instrumental in the progress of the game from the early days of the sport.

Although he celebrated his sixtieth birthday in August, Comiskey still is as active as he ever was except that he does not play.

It did not require much plumb-ing to convince the Sox president that this was another field, so dis-regarding the apprenticeship under which his father placed him he joined the Milwaukee baseball club as a third baseman in 1876. He was seventeen years old and his salary was $60 a month. Before this time however Comiskey played sand-lot ball with his pals and became quite proficient in the art of handling a baseball.

Comiskey is accustomed to seeing his team win pennants. In fact, he started the pennant winning business back in 1885 when as captain and manager of the St. Louis Browns his team won the American Association pennant in 1885-6-7-8. The Browns participated in the world's series of those years, winning one series losing two and tying one.

In 1892 he became captain and manager of the Cincinnati Reds and while acting in that capacity met byron B. Johnson, then engaged in newspaper work in that city. Comiskey and Johnson saw the financial possibilities of another major league and were the chief factors in the expansion of the old Western league into the American league.

Following three years as first baseman and manager of the St. Paul Club in the Western association Comiskey became manager of the Chicago Western association club in 1898 and 1900 took the club as president and owner in its first year in the American league. In 1900 and 1901 the team won the American league pennants, thus giving Chicago its first championship teams since the days of 1882 when Anson's club captured the final National league trophy.

Since 1900 Comiskey has headed the White Sox. He is owner of Comiskey Park styled "the Baseball palace of the world" and holds the distinction of being the only player who rose from the ranks to the position as sole owner of a major league ball club.

This year as president and owner of the team Comiskey will have the opportunity of witnessing a contest for the world's honors in baseball between Chicago and Cincinnati as he did when a boy in 1870. In that year the invincible Cincinnati and the original Chicago White Stockings played a two game series to determine the championship of the United States. Comiskey, then clad in knee pants, saw the Chicago win one of the games by a score of 16 to 13 before a crowd of 52,000 persons. He is one of the few prominent baseball men living today who witnessed that game.

The White Sox president has never said whether he received his baseball inspiration at that time but it is recorded that he began playing town ball very soon after that memorable series.

Under the leadership of Comiskey the White Sox team always has been popular with the fans. In 1910 when he built his mammoth concrete baseball stadium he kept bleacher seats at twenty-five cents because he said he owed loyalty to this class of followers of the game who supported him when he first came to Chicago and he has continued to charge $1 for box seats while the price has been raised in most of the larger cities.

while he was in the last half. On the tackle Mooney and McKendree make a good pair, both having the weight and the football experience and judgment. McKendree and Kerr are hard to beat at the guard positions, and Burk showed some pep. His weight makes him a stalwart contender as a regular in this position. He also tackles with a vim.

Crawford is an aggressive center as well as a valuable man in the backfield. He punts well, kicks-off well and knows how to pass the ball. With a bit more experience and the ability to shift to meet the advances of the other team, Crawford promises to be another Roy Stegall in this important center position. The opponents today really did not give him an opportunity to show what he can do on defense.

The men who went in towards the last of the game did not play long enough for the rooters to make up an estimate of them. Case, who supplanted Fentem at quarterback, did not have a strong and unified team to lead. It is therefore not fair to judge of his work in comparison to that of Fentem. He handles the ball well himself, and he calls his signals with emphasis. There seems to be little doubt that he will prove a valuable man. Roquemore is fast on his feet and good in the broken field. Neeley is fast and is strong on circling ends, though this manner of playing is not very effective as a rule against strong teams. Speed is always a great attribute and Neeley is destined to be a great half.

Assistant Indian Commissioner Wants Tribal Relations Ended

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Assistant Indian Commissioner Edgar B. Merritt caused a sensation when appearing before the house committee investigating Indian affairs Thursday. He declared the time has arrived to break up tribal relations and individualize the Indians, having all competent pass out of the jurisdiction of the Indian office. Chairman Homer P. Snyder suggested to Merritt that his views in this respect were directly opposed to the policy advocated by Commissioner Sells before the committee a few days ago. Merritt replied that he worked in harmony with the policy of the department, but said the opinion expressed was his personal views and added: "I like to speak the truth."

Merritt's testimony was the first evidence that there is a difference of opinion between Cato Sells and his chief assistant. Continuing his testimony, Merritt showed how many Indians have become self-supporting as farmers. Congressman Hastings said that it is felt in Oklahoma that low Indian bureau salaries do not attract the highest type of farm experts. Merritt agreed.

saying these so-called experts now get from $720 to $1,200 a year plus a bonus. The Indian bureau is difficult to administer, as it has to deal with the human elements in land under its jurisdiction equal in area to the New England and New York states.

Merritt said there are few insane Indians, the percentage being much smaller than among whites. Merritt spent most of the day explaining reimbursements. It was developed during the hearing that all of the gratuities now termed "reimbursables" were legislated in 1910, so that the situation in this regard turns out to be instead of an asset to the government of $17,000,000 or $18,000,000 that there is not more than $55,000,000 due.

Chairman Snyder suggested that perhaps congress should hereafter confine reimbursable appropriations to the amount returned the previous year. The charge against Indians for surveying allotted lands included in the reimbursable fund attracted the attention of the committee. Congressman Carter of Oklahoma declared it is unjust since lands given white men are surveyed without charge.

AMERICA MUST MEET OBLIGATIONS

By the Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 24. (Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—"If mankind is to move forward in step, America, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, each in their own sphere, must contribute their stream of effort and illumination to the common pool," says the Round Table in discussing the responsibility of the nations for the future of the world.

"What that means in practice we cannot now do more than mention," the editor continues. "That it means the acceptance of large mandatory responsibilities by America goes without saying. A nation of 100,000,000 possessed of far greater wealth than any other in the world cannot continue self-centered in her own home and grow to the full stature of national manhood."

"America laid herself open to the charge of selfish indifference to anything but her own interests by the slowness with which she recognized her duty in the war, and the consequently small sacrifice which she made for the cause of human freedom."

"She is now showing a similar readiness to try to escape from practical responsibility for the unfortunate peoples not yet able to stand alone, and consequently leave them to be exploited, and in some cases massacred, by peoples in no way qualified to have control of them. America will doubtless rise rapidly to a sense of her responsibilities. But it is urgent that she should not delay."

"The problem of the Dominion is different. They pulled their entire weight during the war. All of them except Canada have now assumed trusteeship for backward peoples."

ARKANSAS RACE RIOTS SUBSIDE

SITUATION EASIER TODAY, BUT NO INDICATION THAT THE TROUBLE IS ENTIRELY
OVER.

By the Associated Press

ELAINE, Ark., Oct. 4.—The inhabitants of this little town breathed easier today than at any time since early in the week when race disturbances of a serious nature broke out without warning. Generally it was believed here that the worst of the trouble was over. However, officials were emphatic in their assertions that there would be no relation of emergency measures and there was no indication that the 500 soldiers sent here from Camp Pike would be withdrawn soon.

The authorities expected today to obtain additional information through further questioning of Ed Hicks, said to have been one of the ring leaders of the negro organization known as "The Progressive Farmers and Household Union of America." Hicks, who was arrested yesterday is said to have admitted that he was president of the organization. Through this organization officials say the negroes in this locality were banded together for an uprising. A negro in custody said today he was certain there was 250 members in this organization and probably 500.

Army officers estimated today that the number of negroes that had passed through their hands exceeded 800. Late last night they said there were about 150 in custody, the others having been released on giving evidence of good character. Among those detained are four women.

HUGE BABYLON ABOUT TO FALL

COLOSSAL $335,000 FILM SET BUILT HERE FOR DAVID WARK GRIFFITH ORDERED RAZED

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—The famous Babylon set used by David Wark Griffith in the filming of "Intolerance" is to be razed.

With the passing of the vast structure, the most colossal set ever used for a motion picture, Los Angeles will lose one of its historic sights. Hundreds of thousands of tourists from all parts of the world have gazed on the massive and ornate pile for the last time. The word has come from Mr. Griffith to begin the work of dismantling the set, and where now stands the replica of an ancient city will be reared the largest and best equipped studio of which the motion picture world can boast.

The word to raze the now historic set came from Mr. Griffith in New York. It was a move long contemplated by the master producer but the sentiment attached to the Babylonian set as the crowning feature of the most spectacular motion picture that has ever been conceived was so great that Mr. Griffith could not order its destruction until he was thousands of miles from the scene.

Although constructed only a few years ago the set has come to be regarded as one of the landmarks of the city. Eighteen months were required to construct it and one and a quarter million feet of lumber was used. The cost of construction was $335,000.

The upper runways of the wall were supported by some forty-one images of elephants, each 110 feet high. There were eighty-four steps from the lower hall to the banquet room in which the famed feast of Belshazzar took place.

PRINCE IN CAPITOL NOV. 11, IS PLAN

By the Associated Press

KINGSTON, Ontario, Nov. 2.—The Prince of Wales will arrive in Washington on Nov. 11, for a three day's visit, it was announced from aboard the royal train. From there he will go to New York to embark on the H. M. S. Renown, remaining in the American metropolis for a few days, living aboard his ship while there.

Arrangements for the entertainment of the Prince while in the United States capital have not been announced.

The Renown, with the prince's party aboard, will put in at Halifax en route to England, where the Prince will bid Canada farewell.

AVIATOR WILL FLY TO THE SOUTH POLE

By the Associated Press

LONDON, (By Mail)—John L. Cope, leader and organizer of the British Imperial Antarctic Expedition, states that the preparations for his flight to the South Pole are well advanced. Experts are now engaged in designing the plane in which the flight will be made.

"We have received a terrible blow in the death of Brigadier General Lee, who had signed on with the expedition as chief of the aeronautical staff and would have piloted the plane to the South Pole," said Mr. Cope. "I am now in negotiation with one of the most famous airmen in the world, who, I think will take the place of General Lee. I cannot disclose his name, but he has won the Victoria Cross as well as the Distinguished Service Order for his magnificent exploits as an aviator on the western front."

Mr. Cope stated that he was not merely going to fly to the pole but that he intended to use the airplane throughout the six or seven years that the expedition would be on the ice. The Antarctic had never been charted properly, he said, owing to the fact that many parts were quite inaccessible on foot. It was his intention to chart the whole Antarctic from the air.

Second in command to Mr. Cope will be Ernest Joyce, who accompanied the first Scott expedition to the South Pole and was a member of both Shackleton expeditions.

Few People See The Old Home of Jesse James

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 3.—Surrounded by weeds and underbrush, a squat and weather-beaten cottage of four rooms stands almost forgotten near the heart of St. Joseph and within two blocks of two trolley lines. The house was once occupied by Jesse James, the famous Missouri bandit.

A sign on the front door of the cottage informs the casual passer-by that for the modest sum of 15 cents, including war tax, presumably the visitor may see the room in which the chief of bandits was shot to death by "Bob" Ford the morning of April 3, 1882, as he was hanging a picture. The bullet hole in the wall of the room and the place where the blood stains are said to have been are pointed out to the curious.

A score or more years ago a visit to St. Joseph was not considered complete without a jaunt to the home of Jesse James. But the times have changed—the war and everything, the old couple who are completing nearly twenty years residence in the former bandits dwelling, explained, and visitors are rare. So far as maintaining the place for its historical name, it is a failure, they say in the last six months, only one person came to see the house where Jesse James lived and died.

PAPER SHORTAGE MAY BE SOLVED

URBANA, Ill., Nov. 2.—"In view of the present paper shortage I regard it as entirely possible that soon every large city will have its own paper recovering plant. In that way more than half the wood pulp used every day may be saved." This was the assertion of Dr. Oliver Kamm of the department of organic chemistry at the University of Illinois who recently had charge of the research work conducted at the 26 mills of the American Writing Paper company.

"The shortage has been and still is an item of great concern to newspaper men all over the country and as a result numerous attempts have been made to find new processes for the manufacture of paper," he continued.

"Straw, grass and even dead leaves have been used with some success, but the processes necessary to make usable paper from these materials have proved more expensive than wood pulp. Looking into the future we have concluded that probably in 20 years, when our forests are somewhat depleted, straw cornstocks, leaves and various other substitutes for wood pulp which are continually being brought up and found to be inferior, may be used in making of print paper."

"The most important process now used for reducing the price of paper is that of re-inking and restoring the paper that has been already used. This has been found profitable for book paper and other higher grades but it does not pay so well for use on newsprint because the materials that go into that paper are cheaper than the cost of re-inking."

OKLAHOMA WHEAT CROP ONLY HALF SOLD

By the Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 3.—The state board of agriculture, in a recent report, estimated that 43.7 per cent, or 21,939,000 bushels of Oklahoma's wheat crop is still in the hands of farmers. The largest percentage on hand, according to the board's estimate from reports of field agents, is found in the extreme northwestern, western and southwestern counties.

The crop already threshed sustained a loss of 2.5 per cent because of insufficient protection from the weather. This loss, amounting to approximately 1,250,000 bushels, was due to exposure of the crop while in the shock and after threshing. Farmers who stacked their wheat experienced only slight losses.

Only 3.9 per cent of the state's wheat remains to be threshed. The board further estimates that there will be a reduction of 27.6 per cent in the acreage planted to wheat this fall, compared with the acreage planted in the fall of 1918. This estimate is subject to change, according to future weather conditions, as planting is still under way.

BOYS IN OVERALLS GIRLS IN CALICO

Durant News:

When it comes to putting the kibosh and a half-Nelson on Old Man H. C. L., the students of the Southeastern State Normal of Durant have the problem grappled and their opponent lashed to the mast at least for the present.

And here's how they are doing it:

The boys are wearing overalls and the girls calico, and as an evidence that the movement is not a sporadic or ephemeral one is the fact that today in the Normal class rooms are one hundred boys and one hundred girls thus attired with the promise to continue in such costume until at least the first of December.

Ross Quincy, president of the juniors, is head of the organization of students who are thus combatting the high prices for wearing apparel, and he says his followers are enthusiastic and sure to follow the program out to the letter.

President Bennett of the Normal views the movement from a broad-minded standpoint and feels somewhat elated that so many of his students have the nerve to do the stunt. The movement, however, is so general that there is little likelihood of ridicule having any effect on the participants.

The young folks are being generally congratulated on the stand for economy—even by some of the merchants who are losing a little business because of the new order of things.

BRITAIN LEANS TO "DRYNESS"

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Three months ago the pubs (public houses, saloons) were crowded with men who declared with sureness that Great Britain would never go "dry," that no matter what would happen elsewhere in the world, the British Isles would remain the inviolable haven of liberty.

Today the pubs seem just as crowded but the discussions of the tipplers are on the question whether prohibition will come abruptly within the next five years or gradually during the next fifty. That it will come seems generally accepted.

An Anti-Dry Campaign.
The London Daily Mail, which has been conducting an anti-prohibition campaign, chiefly by ridiculing "Pussyfoot" Johnson, the Kansas "dry" campaigner, is becoming less bitter, and seems suddenly to have realized that its excess of energy in informing Mr. Johnson he was not welcome in this country has been the most favorable advertisement for him. His name is on everyone's lips; "Pussyfooting" has become a London expression; he has reached the glittering glory of having his name bandied upon the vaudeville stage. He is known and he achieved this national prominence in a very few weeks.

So far "Pussyfoot" has done very little speaking. It is known that he has not approved the churchy sort of temperance lectures that were blocking prohibition over here and had sent for a Kank "wrecking crew" which has been unable to come across owing to the alleged refusal of the British government to grant passport visas. "Pussyfoot" has been very busy, however, with a silent campaign, and without doubt something is going on quietly, invisibly, that shows the effect of strong "dry" influence.

The "Wet" Argument.
The latest defense of the anti-prohibitionists seems to be founded on two arguments: The nation has had four and a half years of dying and should be allowed to live to the fullest now; the brewers and distillers themselves are taking steps to eradicate intemperance and to make rational drinking possible.

What "Pussyfoot" Johnson is instilling into many minds—by some occult process—is that a person feels better and works or plays better if all drinking is given up.

Thomas Burke, the English novelist, who has been one of the bitterest enemies of prohibition, has confessed his alarm at the turn of the situation. "I would never have believed it possible," began Mr. Burke. "I could imagine the aristocracy pretending it had given up alcohol, but I was certain that English workingmen would never honestly forsake the stimulant which they need in this climate."

They've Sworn Off.
"I had a carter bring some boxes of books over from Balham to my house in Highgate the other day. It was very hard work. When he had finished I said, 'Now, my man, go in the kitchen and have a bottle of beer.' He touched his cap respectfully and excused himself.

"We had a delivery of coal last week. I made the usual offer of beer to the coal man. He said, 'Sorry sir, but I have given it up for good, and if you would sir, you would feel much better.'

"I told the man I feel and have felt all right, but he only smiled. My hospitality was next refused by a chimney sweep. I called on an old friend who is 'mine host' at a fourteenth century tavern at Uxbridge. I had often spent the night at the inn, and even have helped to fill the tankards of beer when there was a rush. This inkeeper has not only 'gone dry,' but he too, carried along the insidious propaganda by telling me he felt much better. Another old friend of mine, a magazine editor, told me he resolved to try abstinence for a month to note its effects. His testimony was that within a week he felt younger and stronger, and that at his office his feet danced beneath his desk all day long, whereas they were as heavy as lead while he was a drinking man.

"But all of them confess one deep regret—they suffer a loss of sociability. Formerly they met their friends casually or by appointment at their favorite pubs. Now they have no meeting place."

The Week of Prayer

Ladies of the Methodist congregation, make a special effort to attend. If anything keeps you from attending this afternoon BE SURE to come tomorrow.

Prayer is a mighty factor in the world's redemption. Did you know there are fewer Christians in San Francisco than in Shanghai, China? Isn't it enough to make us tremble for our Christian America?

"HELP" is right! A smooth, mellow smoke is just the thing, when you're up against a tough one. And Chesterfield is that smoke.

An expert and exclusive blend is responsible—finest, silkiest Turkish tobaccos from Xanthi, Cavalla, Smyrna and Samsoun, and the best varieties of Domestic leaf—put together by the manufacturer's private formula that brings out every last bit of flavor. No other process, no other blend, can successfully imitate Chesterfield's smoothness and full-bodied flavor.

No argument here! Chesterfields satisfy as no other cigarette has ever satisfied before.

This fellow is the real aristocrat of hogdom and outside of the pride he gives his owner he can be sold any time for enough to buy a good farm almost any place.

Yet he occupies no more room than a runt and has cost no more to raise. His owner started in the business with a $25.00 pig, only a short time ago.

The world needs hogs; it will continue to pay for them. The better the hogs, the better the pay.

This bank does not put itself in the position of telling farmers how to farm, but we believe in good hogs. The kind that can sometimes be sold for breeding purposes at high prices.

THE MOBILIZATION OF ED BOYLE

The great coal battle is now ready to break—press dispatches declaring that the Honorable Edward Boyle is mobilized. He has descended on the McAlester sector with his heavy artillery, with his big guns and little guns and air guns, with his gas offensive and his offensive gas, swearing by the big sea serpent that no militiaman shall ever enter a mine. He is not taking sides in the strike, but he will exhaust himself and the public patience in putting the everlasting kibosh on General Barrett's militia.

Like Diogenes rolling his tub the Honorable Edward can let no rook pass without his calling for chips. Fresh from the late congressional shindig over in the Fifth where he got fewer votes than Jacob and children, he makes one more bid for the hall of Fame by his rhetorical appeal for publicity. "The governor's action in calling out the troops was a fox pass," quoth the Honorable Ed, "and is bound to prove a bummyranger. Them there soldiers is not needed, for you can see I'm here. Just let one soldier pull a gun and I'll swear out a writ of habe a carcass for him. There's no marshal law that'll suspend my prerogatives. When it comes to these here coal diggings I'm a Samson and got the same kind of a weapon."

Thus the war clouds fall and the gas clouds rise, and as you cast your optics down towards the coal fields you behold Ed Boyle mobilized like death on the pale horse. Loaded to the muzzle with the gas that made vipers famous he bids fair to fill the fields about McAlester with an ancient and fish-like smell.

Vital statistics compiled by the war department show that during nineteen months only twenty-three American soldiers died of typhoid. During the same nineteen months 30,000 civilians died of typhoid. This is almost unbelievable. That only twenty-three men out of the four million under arms should die in nineteen months of a disease counted among the most dreaded of all diseases is almost beyond credence. Such a record proves the remarkable progress made by the medical and hygienic world in the past twenty years. It also proves the advisability of all those precautions employed by the medical department of the army to preserve the health of the troops. Sanitary conditions and universal inoculation will speedily eliminate typhoid from our civilian population just as they eliminated it from the army. The war taught us many valuable lessons, if we are only wise enough to profit by its teachings.

All this turmoil that extends from sea to sea is largely due to the violation of a fundamental law. By failing to observe the equality of men government has gone far to create conditions from which unrest springs. By favoring certain classes and petting certain classes, by making children of some and only step-children of others, inequality has crept into our national life, and grievances have become prolific. Favored classes ask more than they are entitled to—other favored classes take more than they are entitled to. By equalizing rights and privileges according to the fundamental law of the land this nation can restore a lot of the contentment that has disappeared. By removing legal and economic wrongs and then enforcing all laws impartially we can make this country much better than it is and satisfy all right-thinking people.

No imported gink from the purlieus of a federal prison is going to get very far lying about Tom D. McKeown in handbills scattered about the streets. A man who has lived half a life-time in Pontotoc County and is known by all its citizens as a clean and honorable man has nothing to fear from the studied falsehoods of a mangy biped who has cracked his brain scratching fleas in an alley.

Now they are saying down east that Henry Cabot Lodge has lost all hope of defeating the covenant and is only engaged in a desperate effort to save his leadership in Massachusetts. It adds nothing to his equanimity to know that he is opposed by Murray Crane, one of the most astute political leaders that the old Bay State ever knew.

Another thing we are seeking light on is why a tax of $1.50 a thousand on nickel cigars should cause the price to advance $10.00 a thousand in some cities, $20.00 a thousand in other cities, $30.00 a thousand in still other cities, and not a durned penny in Atlanta.

BULGARIANS ARE SORE AT PEACE TERMS

By the Associated Press

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 26. (By Courier to Paris, Oct. 8.)—The terms of peace prescribed by the Allies to Bulgaria, a summary of which reached Sofia by telegraph, produced profound disappointment and depression throughout the country. The people, press and government were unanimous in condemning them as harsh and humiliating. Young King Boris was much grieved when he read the announcement of the terms. He had not believed Bulgaria would be stripped of Thrace, its entire coast line on the Aegean and a part of its western frontier.

Minister of War Madjaroff, formerly Bulgarian minister to London, declared to The Associated Press that Bulgaria might for the moment be humiliated and crushed, but she would rise up again with renewed strength—it might be five years from now, it might be ten, it might be twenty, but rise she would. Her "just military and territorial desires might be repressed by the force of superior numbers, but her spirit, which was eternal, could not be suppressed by any power on earth."

The Bulgarians, he continued, were a patient, forbearing people with whom patriotism and national honor were a passion. There could be no peace in the Balkans under such an "unjust territorial arrangement" as the Peace Conference has laid down. Bulgaria would have to prepare to resist the invasion of her soil by her hostile neighbors, which sooner or later was inevitable. She could not attain her normal, economic, political or social growth under the "harsh provisions" of the treaty. She might be compelled out of self preservation, if the terms were not modified, to resort to drastic expedients. He was not prepared to say what these were.

He declared the peace terms to Bulgaria not only were a mockery of President Wilson's principles of nationalities and the territorial integrity of small nations, but were a direct refutation of the cause for which the Allies professed to have fought.

"How could any just and well-informed group of statesmen," he asked, "give Czaribrod and other Bulgarian cities in which there was not a single Serb, to the Serbians? How could they expect Bulgaria to carry on its industrial life with every port on the Aegean closed to her?" The peace of the Allies, he declared, was not a peace—it was a "travesty on justice."

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Great Britain is expecting Czechoslovakia to furnish an important market for British trade when more stable economic conditions have been established in the new republic. The Board of Trade Journal points out that Czechoslovakia, which includes Bohemia, is rich in raw materials, and possesses some of the most important industries in Europe. It is estimated that about eighty per cent of the mines and industrial businesses of the old Austro-Hungarian Empire are now within the boundaries of the republic.

THE NAUGHTY MOTHS.

"I think it is nice to be naughty," said little Miss Moth to Master Moth.

"I agree with you," said young Master Moth.

"You are dear children," said Mother Moth.

"The summer is such a nice time, but alas it is all over," said Miss Moth.

"Yes, folks will be taking out their clothes and will be wearing their warm things before long," said Master Moth.

"Taking Out Their Clothes Now." Now this moth family belonged to a family known as the case-making clothes moth family because they make for themselves a little case.

"My head and front wings are yellowish and my hind wings are grayish and silky," said Master Moth. "That is as it should be."

"Just as it should be," said Mother Moth.

"Mother, dear," said Miss Moth, "won't you tell us something of our family history?"

"Certainly, dear, if you would like to have me tell you," said Mother Moth.

"I would," said Miss Moth.

"So would I," said Master Moth.

"In the northern part of the country," began Mother Moth, "our family come out around June and stay out until some time in August. There is usually one brood of little moths for each mother moth. But in the southern part of the country our family choose the months from January until October and they have one or two precious broods of young."

"Would people call them precious broods of young?" asked Miss Moth.

"I don't believe they would," said Master Moth.

"I'm sure they wouldn't," said Mother Moth.

"Well, pray continue," said Miss Moth. "I didn't mean to interrupt."

"The larva, which is a word all moths and caterpillars and most children, I think, understand," said Mother Moth, "is a whitish sort of caterpillar with brownish coloring mixed in too. It can move around in its case and it can make its case larger by making silts for itself. Isn't that clever and interesting?"

"Very," agreed Miss Moth and Master Moth.

"Then the case can be made longer by being added to, and the case itself is made of wool on the outside and silk on the inside. By changing the larva to different materials the case can be made of many colors, being the lengthening and adding which I have told you about."

"Sometimes the precious eggs are brought up on the material a mother chooses for her home and sometimes in trunks and boxes."

"We have cousins, such as the tapestry moth, but they aren't as common as we are and their ways are a little different, for they do not make a case for themselves. That is true of the southern moths, for they build a beautiful cocoon of silk, but that is not until they are quite grown. The tapestry moth relations are larger than we are."

"We have our habits, our ways of turning into our different growths, but our lives aren't so long. By turning into our different growths I mean from one stage into another stage, such as into the chrysalis stage. Then, too, we can move our legs from out of our case when we are trying to do a piece of work, such as changing our position and adding some silk to our cases."

"But though we are interesting and have our little ways such as all creatures have, they don't like us—the people don't."

"Never mind," said Miss Moth, "I had a pleasant summer and enjoyed all my meals immensely."

"So did I," said Master Moth. "And I do enjoy being naughty and eating what I shouldn't—bits of wool and cloth and such nice delicacies."

But unlike most mothers Mother Moth smiled and said, "I like to hear of the little moths eating what people think they shouldn't and nibbling where they're not wanted, for they take after the whole family, they do."

Case-Hardened.

"Papa," said a small boy to his parent the other day, "are not sailors very, very small men?"

"No, my dear," answered the father. "Prav what leads you to suppose that they are so small?"

"Because," replied the young idear, "I never saw any of a German sailor on his watch."

SPEECH BY TEDDY MAY HAVE SAVED FRENCH REPUBLIC

In 1910 He Warned French People of the Danger of Radicalism.

"Speaking out in meeting" was one of the propensities of Theodore Roosevelt. When he had words of criticism he preferred to speak them to the person for whom they were intended rather than about him. In line with that policy it was the natural thing for him to deliver a speech against radicalism in the country which showed the greatest leaning toward that menace, and so it was that in his speech at the great French University, Sorbonne, in 1910, he sounded this warning against extreme Socialism that seems prophetic in these days of ruin and despair in Russia.

"The deadening effect on any race of the adoption of a logical and extreme socialistic system could not be overstated; it would produce sheer destruction; it would produce grosser wrong and outrage, fouler immorality than any existing system."

The speech was delivered at a time when the French radicals were especially active. They planned a great demonstration for May 1. Walls were placarded with incendiary appeals and their press was full of calls to arms. The Roosevelt speech set France to thinking more seriously of the dangers of radicalism, and public opinion backed the premier, M. Briand, in refusing to allow the demonstration. The attitude of Briand, according to a letter written by an American military officer stationed at the time in Paris, was freely attributed in intelligent quarters to Colonel Roosevelt's speech—a repercussion of his visit. Regarding the effect of the Sorbonne speech Lawrence F. Abbott in his "Impressions of Theodore Roosevelt" (Doubleday Page & Co.) says:

"If the International Socialists had got control of Paris in 1910 they might have wielded the influence which they sought to exert in the early days of the war in behalf of a 'Brest-Litavsk' peace between France and Germany. Such a peace would have meant the extinction of France, and so it has always seemed to me that Roosevelt contributed personally something to the vigor of the French people."

One of the most enjoyable events of the fall term occurred on last Friday evening when the Sophomores of the Normal entertained the student body at a Halloween party given in the gymnasium.

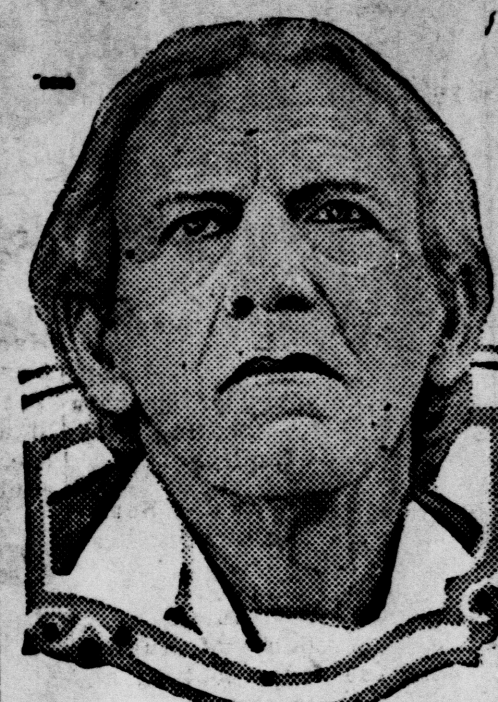

The gym was decorated with the sophomore colors—white and gold. Dotted about, here and there along the walls were black cats, witches and owls. In each alternate window was a large black cat or a yellow paper pumpkin, giving from the outside a "spooky" appearance. Along the side of the room were shocks of corn and bundles of wheat interspersed with legittled pumpkins, and in one corner was a fortune teller's tent, presided over by Madame Rellek Kamme.

At an early hour, despite the rain, the guests, clad in motley costumes, began to arrive and were ushered in by the president, Alma Mount, assisted by a reception committee from the class. Ghosts, fairies, gypsies, Indians, negroes, hayseeds, society belles, Spanish girls, and soldiers put in their appearance and in the dimly lighted room the varied colors added a pleasing touch to the decorations.

After the grand march the time was spent by each member in trying to discover the identity of the others and in trying out fortunes at the various booths. The booth presided over by Madame Rellek-Kamme seemed to be the favorite one.

The prizes, consisting of paper jack-o-lanterns, presented for the most clever costume, were won by Mr. and Mrs. Perkins, who represented a country couple. Mr. Robinson and Mr. Newcomb created much merriment as Mr. and Mrs. Eey. Mr. Robinson being the wife. One of the most complete disguises was worn by Miss Francisco, who represented a small sunbonnet girl. Many of the students' costumes were beautiful and artistic.

The Kingfisher football boys and their coach were guests of the Normal faculty and a number of the Normal faculty were present. The student body was well represented, there being present altogether about two hundred and thirty.

Delicious pumpkin pies "a la black cats," were served as refreshments. After this the guests departed for home, having spent a delightful evening.

The success of the occasion was due to Mrs. Ruth Carter, class sponsor, and to the various committees of sophomore girls who had worked untiringly in their preparation for the evening's entertainment.

Ada Playhouses

The Liberty
Again tonight that great production entitled, "Virtuous Men", pronounced by theater patrons throughout the nation as one of the greatest productions of the film world. Tonight is the last chance to see this great screen sensation, and if you have not seen it you had better not let this opportunity pass.

The American
At the American tonight is the "Great Gamble," Pathe News and Harold Lloyd Comedy. The Pathe News feature at this popular play house is always worth the price of admission. The newest events of the world in pictures is a form of education that cannot be equalled.

Baptist Church Yesterday
Yesterday at Sunday School the First Baptist again broke all past records for attendance, having present 440. The previous high number was 427. We are beginning to feel the great need of additional room to accommodate this large crowd.

The hours of worship were highly gratifying, every available seat being occupied at the morning hour. When the pastor preached on the subject "The Price He Paid." There were two splendid young women who volunteered for foreign mission work. One to China and the other to India.

One of our young men volunteered to lay his life on God's altar to be used wherever He may direct. There were four additions to the church, three by letter and one by baptism.

The night service was well attended. The pastor preached on "The Trial of a Great Christian."

It was our joy to have Congressman McKeown with us at both services. He was asked to say a few words at the conclusion of the night service and brought us a brief but very helpful message, using as a subject "Christianity, the Only Salvation for Present Troubles."

All and all yesterday was a banner day with us at First Baptist. C. C. Morris, Pastor.

Mexicans Want to Come Home.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 13.—News-papers here, printing stories of "thousands of Mexicans in the United States out of work and without funds," advise persons who wish to go to the United States that conditions are unfavorable and urge them to stay at home. The Excelsior points out that the many Mexicans who have been working in the harvest fields in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and Missouri, and in the cotton fields of the South, have been paid good wages but have saved nothing. They now find work scarce and are asking for help to come back to Mexico.

PINK BREECHES IS NEW STYLE IN LONDON TOWN

Say They Want to Popularize "Gallant" Styles of Bygone Days.

By the Associated Press

LONDON. (By Mail.)—A man garbed in a black frock coat, a ruff, a pair of pink breeches and bright colored stockings would likely evoke astonishment if not ridicule were he to stroll down Fifth Avenue or Broadway, but Henry Parkes, hailed in London as "the hidden hand in men's fashions," declares that such restoration of color and line to men's dress should be a logical and altogether proper aftermath of the war. He is seeking to revolutionize men's dress—to popularize the "gallant" styles of bygone days. His creed is that men want to cast off their dark, unsymmetrical garments of gloom and wear clothes of bright hue and brilliant cut expressive of a new age of heroism and romance.

"VOLUNTEERS"—Wanted, 1,000 sportsmen of good social position to wear, upon a given date, new fashions for men, designed to bring back color and line into masculine attire.

This was the gist of a request the apostle of the new era of "romantic dress" sought to have inserted in London papers. To convince newspaper representatives of his sincerity, Mr. Parkes exhibited fifteen sample suits, or rather costumes.

"These clothes," said the revolutionist in fashions, indicating a pearl gray evening dress with lace ruffles, "are not effeminate—can you call the age of Sheridan and Garrick and Walter Raleigh effeminate? It was a gallant age—and so is this one. The end of every war heralds a new age. The smartness of army regalia has worked a sort of dress revolution for men. They now see how much finer they look with waist and in breeches, the girls like them better, they feel braver, more upright."

The "call for volunteers" was printed, but the last communication from Mr. Parkes' establishment, which is to serve as headquarters during the proposed offensive on current men's fashions, was to the effect that the desired "war strength" of 1,000 had not yet been recruited.

Wesley Rogers of Holdenville was a business caller at the Evening News office this morning. He states that the Holdenville company of Oklahoma National Guards left yesterday afternoon for Henryetta to preserve order during the coal strike. He also reports a great deal of oil activity in Hughes County with a number of wells being drilled.

"MIRACLE MAN" IS HERE TOMORROW

Mr. Foster McSwain, the manager of Ada's two popular theaters, the Liberty and American, has secured the famous film, "The Miracle Man" and the same will start at the Liberty tomorrow afternoon and will run three days.

This picture opened in Dallas Saturday and has received more publicity through the press than probably any picture ever staged in that city. The Dallas News of yesterday had a lengthy comment on the film and pronounced it one of the greatest ever shown in Dallas. The people of Ada will be specially fortunate in having an opportunity to see this wonderful production.

High School Notes
Last Friday afternoon the High School had the pleasure of hearing Lieutenant Kellier tell about the battleship that all Oklahomans are more interested in: the U. S. S. Oklahoma. Lieutenant Kellier has been on this battleship for three years and six months and consequently knows many facts about it, particularly interesting to Oklahomans. He said that the U. S. S. Oklahoma had been spoken of by the inspector of the Atlantic fleet as the cleanest ship in the fleet. The crew is said to be one of the happiest and their motto is "Keep the home in Oklahoma." Lieutenant Kellier told the pupils of the High school how much the boys appreciated the silver service presented them by the people of Oklahoma. The students appreciated this talk very much and every one feels a deeper interest in the U. S. S. Oklahoma than ever before.

Have garage on Ozark Trail in Mountain Grove, Mo. Good town, good location. Will sell or trade for Ada property. See J. R. Cordell at Frisco depot. 11-1-3t

Some of the Smaller Hats

Just now millinery shops and their patrons are concerning themselves with hats for midwinter. Turbans and off-the-face hats, small and medium in size, make up a big percentage of the displays, although they are not alone in their glory. There are plenty of large, picturesque models for those who wear them well. But the smaller hats are prominent in every class of millinery: chic tailored hats for the street, semi-dress hats and brilliant models for afternoon wear—all prove successful in the smaller shapes.

The Napoleon hat, full of dash and style, seems to be the inspiration of many models. One interpretation of it appears at the top of the group of small and medium hats shown here. This is a brilliant hat of black pail velvet adorned with long stiches of chenille and an occasional velvet blossom set flat against the upturned brim. This is all that can be told of it in the way of description but the picture shows its style and youthfulness—the intangible things that make it fit company for a handsome afternoon frock or at home with a tailored coat.

The small velvet turban at the left made of tucked velvet, will appeal to the matron who insists upon smart millinery with lines and shape suited to her face. A long, sweeping wing at the front consents to rest where it is, in the company of two handsome ornamental pins, with large heads that are thrust through it. It is a shape that will look well in any of the season's quieter tones of color and will make a fine suit hat. Another interesting hat for a matron is shown at the right of the group. It is of duvety with slashed brim. The crown is concealed by short, uncured ostrich feathers.

The place of honor at the center of the group belongs to a hat that goes a step beyond mere prettiness and looks in another direction for its novel charm. It is one of those shaggy affairs that call to mind the headwear of Robinson Crusoe. Paris has made goats' hair—called by another name—a fashionable adornment for millinery and New York has given monkey fur much attention. These with glycerined and burnt ostrich, burnt goose and other feathers have been used for ornaments like the wreath on the black velvet beret at the center of the picture. A large ivory pin lends its aristocratic air to the ensemble, making a brilliant black and white combination equal to any occasion.

AMERICAN EXHIBIT DRAWS PARIS CROWD

PARIS, Oct. 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—American soldiers and sailors and workers for the Young Men's Christian Association and Red Cross mingle with the crowds attending the exhibition of American paintings at the Luxembourg Museum, the first of its kind to be held in Paris.

While unstinted praise is being given to the many beautiful paintings, some humorous comments are to be overheard among a few which appear strange to the novice in art. "Wouldn't I like some pumpkin pie," said one of the boys while admiring Victor Higgins' striking picture "The Pumpkin Girl."

One picture which draws big crowds is "The Woman in Yellow," by William MacGregor Paxton, and much admiration is accorded to John-Christen Johansen's "Portrait of an Old Lady." This artist was recently in France making a study of General Joffre for the National Academy. Douglas Volk, has an attractive portrait picture "Marion of Hewu Oaks," and has been engaged on a painting of King Albert of Belgium, which is intended for the National Academy of Arts.

Returning soldiers were attracted by a canvas of Gifford Beal, "The Hour of Peace" depicting decorations at 34th St. and 5th Avenue, New York. Red Cross workers admired Gardner Symons' painting, "In the Shadow of the Bridge," an exquisite study of winter sunlight on an old wooden shack and snow-covered ground, with the stonework under the bridge casting wonderful shadows on the water.

Walter MacEwen has a beautiful canvas entitled "Sunday in Holland," picturing two Dutch girls ready for church, bidding good-bye to old granny in her chair, and a contrast to this genteel scene is the late Robert MacCameron's grim and realistic picture "The Slum of London," depicting a row of men and women of the "underworld" drowsing on a bench at night.

A treat to the eye is Astor

Knight's "Under the Mill," a study in sunlight and shadow, and "Les Fivoines" (peonies) by Ernest T. Rosen.

Standing out from the canvas in life-like appeal, is William Cotton's picture, "My Mother." Her brown eyes are as full of expression that one could expect her to smile a recognition of the many Americans who stop to admire her.

So interested are the sightseers that closing time comes around all too soon, and in hurrying out one glances again with renewed pleasure at William Dannat's "Lady in Red," a gracious vision. All agree that the exhibition, which remains open during November, will prove a great attraction to tourists as well as to Parisians who are visiting the gallery in large numbers.

To Cure a Cold in One Day. Take LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE (Tablets). It stops the Cough and Headache and works off the Cold. E. W. Grove's signature on each box. 30c.

McCurran Gazette: If President Wilson had shown a little more firmness to former strikes, things might have been different. There is no earthly reason for strikes in any line of business. Labor is getting more money and doing less work than ever in the history of the country. But just let a few articles like sugar get scarce and a strike is ordered. Rot.

MUST ASSIST EACH OTHER

Prosperity of Community Depends Upon Each of These Two Classes Buying Products and Goods of Each Other.

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.) The first essential in the development of any business is the possession of a market. The manufacturer must have a market for his products or he cannot succeed, no matter how valuable those products may be or how efficiently his plant may be operated. The wholesale merchant and the retail merchant may have the choicest stocks of goods, but they may as well go out of business if they have not a market where they can dispose of their stocks. The farmer may produce bumper crops, but they will rot upon the ground if he cannot find a market for them. The wage earner's skill and muscle bring him no returns unless there is a market for his labor.

The question of markets is the big one in every line of business and in every community the question is a vital one. In each community, which must be taken to include not only the people who live in the town but the farmers who live in the surrounding country as well, there are two sides to the market question. The business men of the town must have a market for the things which they have to sell. Otherwise they cannot continue in business. At the same time the farmers must have a market for the things which they raise or they may as well go out of business.

When Either Fails Both Suffer. The merchants of the town can provide a market for the products of the farmers and the farmers can provide a market for the goods which the merchants have to sell. As long as each class of citizens provides a market for the other class all is well and the goose hangs high, but when either class fails to provide a market for the other the goose is cooked, not only for the class which is deprived of the market but for the other as well.

The farmer has a right to expect the town which is his natural trading point to provide a market for his products, and the town is not performing its proper function as the trading center of its community if it does not see that such a market is provided. The responsibility of looking after the fulfillment of this obligation rests largely upon the merchants of the town. The farmer is a producer and he must dispose of his products before he can become a consumer. It is, therefore, not only right but necessary from a business standpoint that the merchants should aid the farmer in turning his products into money. Otherwise the farmer naturally will have no money to spend in the stores of the town.

Obligation on Farmers. On the other hand, the merchants of the town have a right to expect the farmers to provide a market for the merchandise which they have to sell, and the farmers are not doing their duty to their community if they do not provide such a market. In this case, also, it is not only right but it is necessary to the prosperity of the farmers that they should aid the merchants in turning their merchandise into cash. Otherwise it is obvious that the merchants will have no money with which to buy the products of the farmers.

This is a double-barreled proposition and the obligation rests equally upon both the merchants and the farmers to maintain the markets which are essential to both classes of citizens. Any town which would import from points hundreds of miles distant the farm products which it could buy at home would be pursuing a very short-sighted policy, for it would be making it impossible for the farmers in its territory to buy the goods of its merchants. As a matter of fact no town does this unless it is forced by unusual conditions to do so. A town may be located in a community which is not productive enough to meet the local demands, and in that case it is forced to import farm products but the town which is compelled to do this is at a disadvantage from a commercial standpoint unless it is essentially a manufacturing town, in which case its products are sold to other communities and bring in enough cash to offset that which is sent away to purchase farm products.

Must Have Outside Business. In the average community, however, the town is dependent for its prosperity upon the money received from the farmers in the ordinary channels of trade, rather than upon that obtained from the sale of its own products. In the average town the merchants cannot make money and continue in business if they are dependent solely upon the people of the town for their business.

No business can last long with "everything going out and nothing coming in," and it is equally true that no business can be operated on the principle of "everything coming in and nothing going out." To maintain the balance which is necessary to the maintenance of prosperity in a community there must be an even trade between the business men of the town.

ARTICLE NO. 4.

To Reinstate Yourself for Govern- ment Insurance

War Risk Insurance that has been cancelled or allowed to lapse may be reinstated in whole or in part by the payment of two monthly premiums on the amount of insurance to be reinstated, one of these premiums being to cover the last month the insurance was in force (the months of grace), the other to cover the month in which it is reinstated (the current month) provided the insured is in good health as at the date of his discharge or at the date the insurance lapsed, if lapse occurred after discharge, and so states in his application for reinstatement. You may reinstate yourself up to one year and a half after date of discharge; but it must be remembered that you have no insurance during the time the premiums have lapsed.

Applications must be made on form No. 742, which may be obtained by applying to Harry Schien-berg, and must be accompanied by the premium for two months—that is, for the month of grace (in which you were protected) on the amount of insurance to be reinstated and the premium for the current month on the amount of insurance to be reinstated. Thus, if in January 1919, you dropped $10,000 of insurance and in August 1919, you wished to reinstate all or part of this insurance, it would only be necessary to remit the premium for the month of January 1919 (the month of grace,) on the amount of insurance to be reinstated and the premium for the month of August 1919
on the amount of insurance to be reinstated.

If you have dropped any of your insurance my advice would be to reinstate and convert at once;
because you actually lose money by putting off your conversion. A careful study of the preceding articles will show you the reason for this.

How to Convert Your Term In- surance.

First decide which policy or policies is best suited to your needs and the amount of insurance you are going to take. Get form No.
739 and fill it out completely, enclose a check or money order covering the first premium of your converted policy or policies and forward it to the Bureau of War Risk Insurance as directed on the above mentioned form. This form is an application for a converted policy and when approved your policy will be sent to you, which policy takes effect the first of the month following the approval of your application.

ENGLAND DEPENDING ON BIG POTATO CROP

LONDON, Nov. 2.—It depends largely on the potato crop whether there will be plenty to eat in England this winter at a fair price—fair, that is, as standards are now.
The majority of the people in this country eat potatoes twice a day and many working class families eat them three times a day, at 4 cents a pound. But if the crop runs short the prices will rise and the people will cut down on potatoes and turn to something else. As there is no other crop produced in this country of value and quantity people will have to eat something that is imported, which means that there will be increased demand for outside products, with a still greater increase of prices.

So every little housewife is praying that the potato crop will be as good as it was last year, so that she can afford to have enough to eat.
If other farinaceous foods are not called upon to excess it is expected they will remain at their present price. If potatoes drop off, then it is predicted that bread, rice, oatmeal, all the grains and cereals, will jump to famine prices and there will be something like a panic.

Another thing that has to be taken into consideration is that people in England are eating more per head than they did a year ago.
Some attribute this to the reaction after years of strain, some to wilful greediness, but the simple fact is that as soon as the rationing was relaxed housewives provided more generously for their families. Women who had become accustomed to thankfully grabbing any food that was available found it hard to refrain when long absent favorites again made their appearance on the market, and the more people had the more they wanted, so in a short time the consumption of food jumped to astonishing figures. It is returning to normal again now, the country has made up for lost weight and by the time that winter is here it is expected that food demands will have returned to pre-war standards.

100 NEGROES ARE ON TRIAL IN COURT AT HELENA, ARK.

Two Lawyers Implicated in the Case and Will Be Tried.

By the Associated Press
HELENA, Ark., Nov. 3.—Trial of more than 100 negroes charged with intent to commit murder during alleged participation in the recent race riots in the southern part of this county began in circuit court here today. The cases of eighteen defendants were expected to be taken up today.

In addition to the cases against the negroes two attorneys O. S.
Bratton and G. P. Casey, are facing charges of barratry in connection with the disturbances which have been officially characterized as an armed uprising and which resulted in the killing of five white persons and a score of negroes. The cases against the attorneys, it was said today, probably will not be reached until later in the term.

Pontotoc County Mission.

At a meeting of the Men's Bible Class of the Methodist Church last Sunday these generous men who have an interest in the other man as well as themselves, decided to provide a house and $25.00 a month for the coming year to be paid to a minister who shall care for religious work in various communities contiguous to the city of Ada. This man to come here after the conference which meets this week in Sapulpa, will devote all his time to the interest of the Methodist church in the rural sections of the county which is not now occupied by the churches. The various communities where he preaches will have churches organized and what they are able to contribute to the salary of the pastor will be supplemented by the Board of Missions of the Conference, and by the generosity of the above mentioned Bible Class of the Methodist congregation.

PEANUT RAID DRAWS LARCENY WARRANT

S. L. Hays of Lula came to Ada this morning and swore out a warrant for one Bruce Harbin on a charge of petit larceny.

The complaint alleges and intimates that on or about Oct. 1, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and nineteen and of the Independence of the United States one hundred and forty-three,
the aforesaid Bruce Harbin did wrongfully, intentionally, malicious-ly, covertly, slyly, cutely and aggravatingly, take, steal, appropriate, purloin, confiscate and commandeer, one quart or one fourth gallon of peanuts, penders, or goobers, of the reasonable value of fifteen cents (15c) with the intention of taking, masticating, eating and digesting,
the aforesaid peanuts, etc., which act is contrary to the peace and dignity of the State of Oklahoma.

ALTHOUSE TO SING WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Paul Althouse.

"My Heart's Country" and "Christ in Flanders" will be among the numbers to be sung by Paul Al-thouse, tenor, formerly with the Metropolitan Opera Company, in concert at the Normal auditorium
Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.
The High School, under whose auspices the concert is given, deserves the unstinted support of the community.

Militia Pass Through Ada.
Quite a contingent of state militia were in Ada awhile this morning.
They belonged to the machine gun company from Ardmore and were on their way to Coalgate. Coming up the Frisco from Madill, they waited in Ada for the southbound Katy.
Another contingent of the militia passed thru Ada this morning over the Frisco on their way to Henry-etta.

Teacher Training Class

The Teacher Training Class will meet at the First Christian Church this evening at 7:30. The class will review Bible Geography. Every member of the class is asked to be present, and any one interested in knowing what the work is is more than welcome to attend this evening. C. V. Dunn, Instructor.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS AFTER OUTSIDE AID

That a number of school districts of Pontotoc county may participate in the state funds available to assist needy schools is the report of County Superintendent Floyd.

The last legislature appropriated $100,000 to assist such districts as may not have sufficient resources to carry on a full term of school.
Several districts in the county have made application for a part of this appropriation and Superintendent Floyd is working diligently to get as much assistance for these districts as it is possible to obtain.
The districts that have made application and the amounts asked for are as follows: Allen, $500; Bebee, $463.88; Center, $500.00; Stonewall, $500.00; Dolberg, $60.00; Fitzhugh, $500.00.

Federal aid for rural schools is available again this year and Mr.
Floyd is after a liberal part of this aid for Pontotoc county. The amount appropriated for this year is less than formerly, being reduced $25-000, but Superintendent Wiley, who has charge of the Federal appropriation for this work, writes Mr. Floyd that inasmuch as the Pontotoc districts as a rule have voted the limit for school purposes, he will be inclined to give these districts liberal assistance. The large areas of non-taxable Indian lands in the eastern counties of the state makes it unusually burdensome for districts in this part of the state to carry on school work, and it is to relieve this situation as much as possible that congress has appropriated money to assist the schools.

Parent-Teachers Meet.

The Parent-Teachers Association of the Glenwood school met Friday afternoon with the teachers as hostesses.

The rooms were tastefully decorated in Hallowe'en effect.

After an interesting business session an informal social hour was held during which several impromptu talks were made.

Then dainty refreshments consisting of cinnamon rolls and tea were served.

Miss Miller presided at the Victrola and those present enjoyed the music of the instrument which the association recently purchased.

The patrons expressed their appreciation of the manner in which they were entertained and all seemed reluctant to leave.

Changed Name.

Yesterday at service at the Second Baptist Church a motion was introduced and unanimously carried to change the name "Second Baptist Church" to be hereafter known and designated "Oak Avenue Baptist Church." This is a change greatly appreciated by the pastor and workers. Please remember our name.—
The Pastor.

A Double Breasted Show- ing of Double Breasted Suits

There are two sides
to our Double-Breasted Suit Stock — one for Father and one for Son.

Of course, the suits for Dad are without some of the ginger that jingles in our suits for sons, but they are not a whit less handsome—the difference being solely in the amount of "snap" and not in the amount of satisfaction for both are ALL WOOL — splendidly tailored and every suit is worth every cent we ask for it.

For that's the only way we do business.
